

The Observer would like to help one child at the end of the month to receive $100.00!

KIDDIES' CORNER

Monkey See Monkey Do

FIND THE MONKEY

W Z I K I A S E E R T M Q I O
 N K H J N L V R F T N O E A T
 E M G I B A N A N A S N M Y K
 V X M S V T D A G C L K W V X
 O A X I B H C H F G H E R I J
 L Z W V B L C M R O H Y T K R
 Z V D E F N X Z P M P F O J B
 P I M N T W B G H O T Z R S V
 X M L W F F N L E C O K F W G
 O G A N D I U T T P F R I T B
 K E D N B N R R P B E G T B A
 P N Z M G A H B P S N G S N X
 A R I D M O W W G D P P J B H
 I L Y S C G E S M V L H P J J
 C F A R X I Q S E S G X L T V

- | | | | |
|----------|--------|-------|---------|
| ANIMAL | EAT | FUR | MANGOES |
| BANANAS | MONKEY | NEVIS | SMART |
| CLIMBING | TREES | TROOP | |

Do you know?

A green monkey? Vervet monkeys are an active and agile species of Old World monkey that can be found all over sub-Saharan Africa, even occasionally venturing into urban areas to find food. They travel in big groups called troops, and spend their days foraging for food and finding comfortable and safe resting spots. High up in the trees, they're interesting to look at: they tend to have a green tint to their fur, white eyebrows, and black faces! Due to their interesting color, they are sometimes called "green monkeys."

Vervet monkeys are fairly small and are on the menu for many larger, carnivorous (meat-eating) animals. Large cats like leopards, as well as hyenas, eagles, and snakes, are just some of the animals that prey on primates. In the West Indies, domestic dogs are a serious threat to vervets, as are humans who hunt the monkeys either for meat or in persecution. In order to stay safe, vervet monkeys travel in groups and will head for the trees if there are signs of danger. (Information courtesy San Diego zoo Animals and Plants)

STORY TOPIC

Write a story on your funniest experience with the Green Vervet Monkey

The Observer would like to help one child at the end of the month for six months during the pandemic.

Ages 5 -12 years old should complete all task each week, and the child who get the highest grade on stories and puzzles even colouring and win would be able to receive $100.00 at the end of the month but the winner has to enter each week and has to be able to win for the entire month to win the $100.00 dollars.

Please make submissions to: observnv@gmail.com